

Assessment

Make sure you are doing assessment well. We can provide advice and training on everything from item writing and test development to test validation and calibration to the CEFR. This can be practical training for those directly involved in test design and administration, or theoretical for managers and administrators.

Blended learning

In recent years, institutions have had to move courses online and teachers have had to become familiar with the relevant technology. Now is the time to make sure that your courses are ready for the future.

Blended learning training and advice can be aimed at both practitioners and administrators, providing practical skills and knowledge and/or the background knowledge needed to manage the process professionally.

English Medium Instruction

While there is much more to a successful internationalisation strategy than just providing good courses, they remain at the heart of what you are offering.

EMI makes demands of educators that they are often not trained to deal with. From the hurdle of teaching in English to the different approaches needed to implement an EMI programme, appropriate training is vital. Administrators also need to understand the issues involved and how to provide the appropriate support.

Using technology in teaching

It is easy to think that everybody knows how to use technology, but a principled use of appropriate technology in education involves a combination of skills and knowledge that requires training like any other aspect of teaching.

We provide training and advice that is directly relevant to the context in each case, and make sure that participants finish with a practical toolbox for their own situation.

The products described on this page are modular and can be taken individually or as part of a complete programme. They are available as completely face-to-face, in a blended format, or completely distance, and they can be tailored so that they meet professional development requirements in individual countries and regions.
